Dear [REDACTED]

The Inspector General of the National Science Foundation (NSF) gave me your letter of [REDACTED], for response.

Your letter indicates that you believe you were the [REDACTED] to [REDACTED] from the [REDACTED] certain information [REDACTED]. You complain that others have subsequently obtained and used the same information and that in so obtaining and using this information failed to credit you as the initial [REDACTED]. Using the normal canons of scholarship and noting that you neither wrote, compiled, edited nor arranged this material, we find no basis for reviewing your complaint under NSF regulations and plan to take no action.

Very truly yours,

James J. Zwolenik
